PREFACE.

THIS work is conceived on strictly popular lines. It is intended primarily to help the ordinary reader and the young student to quickly ascertain the aim and scope, not necessarily of the most notable books in the main departments of human knowledge (many of which appeal exclusively to the scholar and the specialist); but certainly of the books which treat their subjects on broad lines, and in point of knowledge, research, and reflection approximate to standard value.

In accordance with this design voluminous and recondite works, irrespective of their value, are (with a few justifiable exceptions) excluded. Books That Count takes note only of books (1) that are in English (together with outstanding foreign books, of which good translations exist); (2) that present concisely, clearly, and authoritatively the general aspects of the subject with which they deal; and (3) that are thoroughly modern in aim and outlook, easily accessible, and purchasable at a moderate price.

The survey embraces about 5500 books, including fully three hundred of first-class importance, which have appeared during the past three years. As showing the up-to-date character of Books That Count, it may be mentioned that several works published so recently as October 1912 are included.

The handbook, in which the alphabetical arrangement has been followed throughout, is divided into fourteen main sections, each of which in turn is subdivided in such a way as to enable the reader to find most readily the really serviceable books on any branch of a given subject.

Books That Count aims not merely at affording guidance to the general reader in his search for the books that are to be reckoned with; it seeks also to present him with a bird's-eye view of their contents. The work furnishes brief characterizations of every book noticed. These are for the most part expository rather than critical, the sole object being to enable the reader to ascertain at a glance the scope and distinctive features of a book. In many cases the aim of a work is described in the author's own words.

The descriptive notes, which have been specially written for this work after a careful examination of the books to which they refer, also furnish useful bibliographical information, the size, number of pages, date, name of publisher, and price of every book being mentioned.

Books That Count is also equipped with two full indices (about 12,000 entries), one of Authors, and the other of Titles. For easier reference, the columns in this book have been numbered in bold type at the foot of each page, instead of the ordinary pagination. The figures in the indices denote the column in which an author or the title of a book is mentioned. There is also a table of detailed contents.

In the compilation of this work every effort has been made to make it comprehensive and authoritative, though finality can hardly be expected. I have consulted nearly two hundred bibliographies by specialists, and have received valuable help from many quarters.

The experts to whom I have applied are too numerous to mention, but I here tender acknowledgment of a special debt to the following: Prof. James Mackinnon, Ph.D., author of A History of Modern Liberty; Alexander Darroch, M.A., Professor of Education, Edinburgh University; John D. Comrie, M.A., B.Sc., M.B.

F.R.C.P.E., editor of Black's Medical Dictionary; Dr. Niecks, Reid Professor of Music, Edinburgh University; Rev. A. B. D. Alexander, M.A., author of A Short History of Philosophy; Rev. Prof. Curtis, D.D., Aberdeen University; William Peck, F.R.A.S., F.R.S.E., City Astronomer, Edinburgh; Leonard Dobbin, Ph.D., translator of Ladenburg's Lectures on the History of the Development of Chemistry; Prof. James Geikie, LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.S.; Cargill G. Knott, D.Sc., Lecturer on Applied Mathematics, Edinburgh University; and Sydney J. Chapman, M.A., Professor of Political Economy, Manchester University. These authorities carefully inspected the lists pertaining to their respective subjects, and made many helpful suggestions, though, of course, I accept full editorial responsibility for the form in which each section now appears.

I am also indebted for suggestions to Best Books and Standard Books, two monumental works, to which every labourer in the bibliographical field must have recourse. But while necessarily compelled to travel to some extent over the same ground as these works in the choice of books and in the matter of classification, I have, in other respects, pursued an independent course. Moreover, Books That Count takes cognizance of many books which could not possibly find a place in the above-mentioned works.

In conclusion, I have to tender my grateful acknowledgments to William K. Dickson, LL.D., Keeper of the Advocates' Library, without whose kindly permission to make an unusually liberal and constant use of the ample resources of that valuable institution, the compilation of this work would have been a matter of great difficulty. A word of thanks is also due to the staff, whose willingness to cope with the exacting demands made upon their time and services during many months is one of the pleasant memories of a somewhat laborious task.

I have also to thank Hew Morrison, LL.D., of Edinburgh

BOOKS THAT COUNT

Public Library, for affording me special facilities to consult many hundreds of volumes, and his staff for their unremitting labours on my behalf. My acknowledgments are also due to Mr. A. N. Nicholson, Librarian of Edinburgh University, for similar assistance.

In a work of this kind the duties of an editor must inevitably cover subjects of which his knowledge can be superficial only, and I trust that if inaccuracies have been introduced, readers will be good enough to send me corrections: likewise any suggestions whereby the work may be improved.

W. FORBES GRAY.

Note.—(1) In all cases where the size of a book is not specifically mentioned, it may be assumed that it is Cr. 8vo. (2) In the vast majority of cases, the prices of books mentioned are taken from the latest edition of the Reference Catalogue of Current Literature. (3) For the addresses of publishers, the reader is referred to the The Writers' and Artists' Year-Book (Black, 1s. net.)

In interpreting the harder passages, translations, paraphrases, or explanations have been introduced and numerous references have been made from one part of the poem to another, and also to Dante's prose works. The origin and exact meaning of archaic words have also been investigated, and marked peculiarities of syntax and metre are noticed. Brief bibliography.

Dr. Karl Witte did more for the revival of interest in Dante in the 19th century than any other scholar. The essays in this volume strike almost every note from the popular lecture to the elaborate treatment of textual matters. The first three lay down Dr. Witte's general position, and place the reader at the point of view from which he would have him look at Dante's work as a whole.

SOME PRESS OPINIONS.

"We regard the 'Writers' and Artists' Year Book' as the most practically useful of all publications intended to assist authors in the business aspects of their work. . . . No one who desires to sell 'copy' should consider himself excusable for not possessing 'The Writers' and Artists' Year Book.' The assertion may seem a bold one, but we have no hesitation in asserting that if any man's work is saleable at all, the address of the purchaser will be found in this most valuable annual."—The Author.

"For the general contributor, especially the novice, it is invaluable, giving just the particulars of payment, style of contribution, methods of preparation, and so on, which it is necessary to know."—Outlook.

"Every piece of information necessary to have an article, story, or drawing 'placed' to the greatest advantage, is given in the shortest possible space. This year book is steadily gaining a great reputation."—Aberdeen Journal.

embracing Painting, Sculpture, Architecture,

The most authoritative library of art criticism
ever printed.

All schools and periods are represented, but only the greatest masters emerge, as biographies. The rest are treated in relation to their fellows and forerunners as incidents of a development. In this way the Series reflects the subject in its true proportions more closely than has been attempted hitherto.

The contributors are, of necessity, international, and include only those writers who, by making real additions to knowledge, have earned their right to speak with authority on the different subjects entrusted to them.

Twenty-five volumes now ready. Large of the Clergy, Divinity Students, and Laymen.

The writers are representative scholars, and each of them has taken a subject with which he is particularly well qualified to deal. The aim of the Series is to bring all the resources of modern learning to the interpretation of the Scriptures, and to place within the reach of all who are interested the broad conclusions arrived at by men of distinction in the world of Christian scholarship on the great problems
